有个英国男孩，名叫牛顿。他看见苹果从树

了，壶盖不停地上下跳动，就好奇地问姑妈：
hú gài wèi shén me huì tiào wǔ
“壶盖为什么会跳舞？”

Childhood question marks.

Childhood is a song, childhood is a painting, and childhood is also a long string of question marks.

There was an English boy named Newton. When he saw apples falling from the tree, he thought: Why did the apples fall to the ground instead of flying into the sky?

There was also an English boy named Watt. He saw that when water boils the lid of the pot bounced up and down, so he asked his aunt curiously, "Why does the lid of the pot dance?"

古时候，中国有个名叫张衡的小男孩，常

常望着夜空，边数边问：“天上到底有多少颗星

孩童就这样在问号中慢慢长大了。后来，牛
dùn wǎ tè hé zhāng héng dōu chéng le yǒu míng de kē xué jiā
顿、瓦特和张衡，都成了有名的科学家。

In ancient times, there was a little boy named Zhang Heng in China who often looked at the night sky and asked, "How many stars are there in the sky?"

These children grew up slowly amidst these question marks. In the end, Newton, Watt and Zhang Heng all became famous scientists.

The smart Sima Guang.

In the courtyard, beside the garden hill,
Lots of kids were playing hide and seek.
Suddenly, there was a sound,
Someone fell into a big water tank.
They couldn't jump in and couldn't climb up,
His friends outside the tank panicked.
They ran away and shouted,
What should the kid in the tank do?

Sima Guang, he did not panic,
He is smart and courageous.
In a hurry, he
Moved a big rock to break the tank.
The water in the tank gushed out,
The boy was rescued and unhurt.
Sima Guang, even though young,
Got praised for being brave and helpful.

好！韩愈真聪明！”

Fill the house.

During the Tang Dynasty of China, there was a famous philosopher named Han Yu.

When he was young, he studied in his hometown. One day, the teacher gave each classmate a coin and asked them to buy an item, and see who could fill a house with what they bought. After school, all the students went to the market to buy things.

The next day, some bought tree saplings, some bought bamboo...but none of them could fill a house. The teacher was disappointed. After a while, Han Yu came. He took out a candle from his sleeve and lit it. The teacher saw him and said happily: "Good! Good! Han Yu is so smart!"
